Farm Products Price Ceilings

W.T.P.B. Explains Eggs, Honey Regulations. Livestock Slaughter

Eggs and honey were added in July to the list of farming products coming under price ceiling. This is effective whether producers are selling to wholesalers, process plants, retailers or direct to consumer.

The new egg order establishes a new basis for ceiling prices across Canada in order to bring prices more correctly into line with established trade practices.

Ceiling prices are now fixed for 25 key market centres, and 11 defined rural producing areas, with the ceilings in these producing areas bearing their proper relationship to the ceilings established in the 25 market centres.

In the case of eggs the producers' ceiling price on sales to wholesale distributors is the wholesale ceiling price as fixed by the order with no provision for margin as between producers and distributors. The producer's ceiling when selling to retailers is also the wholesale ceiling, and the producers ceiling on sales direct to consumers is the wholesale ceiling plus the new retail markup of 6 cents a dozen.

In case of honey, on sales to retailers the producer's ceiling is the wholesale ceiling price. On producer sales direct to consumers, the ceiling is the wholesale ceiling plus a markup of 3 cents a pound.

Livestock Regulations

July regulations re livestock were designed to give better control on underweight livestock being marketed. It is now illegal for farmers, butchers or abottoirs to kill hogs weighing less than 100 lbs. at any time of year. The killing imimmature calves for veal is also prohibited.

New slaughtering regulations do not require a slaughtering permit so long as it is a case of a pig or two used for the family. But it limits all such people to the raising of only two head of any kind of livestock in a year.

There is a big run on honey in the Brooks district with buyers coming for miles and lining up beside the local honey factories to get a supply for the seasons. The demand far exceeds supply with people in some instances travelling for miles, only to be disappointed.

News of No. 19 S.F.T.S.

By R. N. Chester

Well, the big day for our pilots in training is over, but the events in connection with their graduation provide news of the station for the last two weeks. One week was spent in preparation for the presentation of the wings, and one week for the activities of the class.

On Tuesday evening, Aug. 17th, the graduating pilots had their graduation banquet in the Airmen's Mess Hall. They went to a lot of work and decorated the hall very attractively in red, white and blue crepe, with large figures "80" at each end in brown in recognition of their course number. A delightful meal was served to the thirty graduates and seventy invited guests, after which various toasts were drunk and speeches made.

Sgt. Chipzs of Poland, acted as host for the course, welcoming guests on their arrival and acting as host at the banquet. Lac. Woodcock, the leading graduate of the class, proposed the toast to No. 19, and in his speech paid high tribute to the personnel and cooperation of the station while they had been in training. The Commanding Officer, W/C Davenport, replied to the toast, and after thanking the course for their kind remarks, paid them a fine compliment for the work and effort they had gone to to make the banquet such a successful affair. They had set a high standard in it and in their marks and flying ability for the other courses to follow.

The Chief Flying Instructor, W/C Fraser, proposed a toast to the Commanding Officer, who has left us for an appointment to the Staff College at Toronto. He paid high tribute to the work the C.O. had done, and knew that all personnel would miss him from the station. The C.I. also paid tribute to the high average marks that the course had set, and also specially commented on the record of no accidents during their complete training.

Afterwards, the personnel gathered in the lounge for songs and some picture taking before going to the dance at the recreation hall.

The dance that evening was one of the best the station has had, with the station orchestra in attendance, and one of the course acting as Master of Ceremonies. Everyone had a really grand time.

After a day of rest, activities began again on Thursday with the Wings Parade at 2 p.m., starting off the activities. Under a blue sky and a cool breeze, the Wings Parade was formed up on the tarmac, and W/C R. F. Davenport, after a few very fitting remarks, presented those hard-earned wings to the graduates, while twelve pilots flew in the "V" of Victory overhead.

A record of the individual sports supervised by F/O Boyd, appears elsewhere in this issue.

20 Million Chinese Children Hungry

Fifty Million Chinese People Homeless; Appeal to Help a Valiant People

There is a current appeal to help the starving children of China, and to bring hope to those whose homes have been devastated by the Japanese.

Societies and individuals have responded to similar appeals on behalf of other suffering nations. Na cause is more deserving.

The odds which China has survived in the past six years are overwhelming. Her valor and unbeatable qualities are the admiration of the world. But in holding off the enemy, terrible losses have been suffered.

China has lost 90% of her industry, and one-third of the country is overrun. Already five million Chinese have perished. There are fifty million homeless, and over two million children have been orphaned.

But 250 million free Chinese in the central areas have kept up the fight, and it is to this temporary sanctuary that citizens from other occupied areas have fled. Schools and business are ready for rebuilding; millions of people are eager to carry on the fight, to build hospitals and to forge weapons for continued resistance.

China has been fighting a war of defence since 1936.

When Madame Chiang Kai-Shek was in Ottawa, she did ask for military aid for her country and for agricultural equipment and war supplies. But she refrained proudly from asking for anything to relieve the hunger and want of her people.

This Canadian appeal has been approved by national war charities. No contribution so small but it will do some good; none can be too large for the deserving nature of the charity.

One-half cent will give one child a balanced meal. Ten cents would feed a child for almost a week.

Fifty cents will provide liniment for 1000 cases of burning.

One dollar will give food, shelter and medical care to a homeless adult for a month.

Five dollars will disinfect the wounds of 250 people, or buy 350 doses of a new sulpha drug to combat penumonia or blood poison.

Twenty-five dollars will sterilize drinking water for 25,000 people or buy 54 dozen of the surgical needles so badly required in China.

One hundred dollars will buy vitamin capsules of high potency for numerous undernourished children in China, or provide emergency treatment for 100 air raid victims.

Five hundred dollars will buy medical microscopes for training classes of medical personnel or 17 special aluminum sterilizers for use at base hospitals.

And so it goes on. No sum too small. No sum too great.

Impressive Ceremony Marks First Wings Parade No. 19 S.F.T.S.

Ideal weather conditions, planes, flying in perfect formations overhead; music by No. 2 Wireless band; station personnel smartly uniformed, standing at attention and a large and enthusiastic audience from Vulcan, Nanton and surrounding districts, provided a perfect setting for the first wings parade of No. 19 S.F.T.S. Thursday afternoon.

Wing Commander R. F. Davenport, Commanding Officer of the Station presented wings to the graduating class, which was entirely R.A.F., while Wing Commander Fraser was in charge of the parade. Kiddies events consisted of potato races, centipede races, pie eating contests, dressing races, ball throwing contests and softball games. Station events were tug-of-war, barrel rolling, riding the rail, three-legged race and potato race. Later two fastball games with visiting teams were played and a soccer fottball meet with Macleod and Vulcan station teams. The No. 2 band was in attendance all afternoon and provided some much-appreciated music during the sports events. Light refreshments were served and the ice cream and soft drink booths were well patronized, especially by the youngsters. A mammoth, free dance in the drill hall completed the day's festivities.

The station is to be highly commended for the work and effort they put forth to provide so much pleasure to the public.

SERMONETTE

The Israelite of old was delivered from the judgment on Egypt under the protection of the sheltering lamb. The lamb was slain, the blood applied to the door posts. These were the only homes where the death angels did not visit. They were saved by the applied blood.

All Old Testament offerings for sin were blood offerings—a life laid down pointing forward to the great sacrifice of the Lord Jesus Christ on Calvary.

Today by faith in the finished work of Calvary the cleansing blood is applied to our hearts.

The blood did not effect any salvation in the case of the Israelite who did not apply it to his door. The blood of Jesus Christ avails for us only as we by faith appropriate it.

Are you under the shelter of the blood? Have you made this wonderful Savior your Savior?

"For as much as ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers; But with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish and without spot." 1 Peter 1:18 and 19.

Blind Parents

(Amherstburg Echo)

Right here in our own town we feel that some boys and girls have digressed from the rules set down by society which means that they have to be checked up by their teachers and the police. Teachers and police both see the laxity at home and sometimes get into trouble for asking the co-operation of parents to fight this growing tendency in a child. If the parents were brought to task—if they were fined as this couple in the west were—there would be no doubt be closer harmony between parent, teacher and Chief of Police.

We can site several instances where parents were afraid to face facts about their children and this fear and utter disbelief that Johnnie would ever do this or that has helped to make a child a problem to everyone but his parents. There's too much of the ostrich about many parents.

CHILD WELFARE PROBLEM

THERE has been much in the press for some time on the subject of child welfare and juvenile delinquency in Alberta. Although those most familiar with this problem seem to differ widely on the proper remedial steps to take, there appears to be agreement that the system at present in operation leaves much to be desired. Some are violently opposed to industrial or reform schools. On the ground that a stigma may be attached to graduates from such schools. They believe that foster homes provide a much greater likelihood of salvage of these children who are taking crooked paths. Others assert that children in the foster homes are not sufficiently supervised; that they are often overworked and distrusted, and in many cases there is too little warmth of affection and care bestowed upon the children at a most critical time in their development.

One hopeful sign is that the whole matter is being brought into the open, so that these little victims of life's maladjustments and misfortunes may be restored to a useful place in society. Once a faulty system is frankly recognized as faulty, there is hope for reform.

It is a saddening thought that adults are responsible all along the line. It is therefore the obligation of adult society as a whole to correct the evil influences. The children who defy society and commit repeated offences are victims of their elders. In most instances there seems to be error in home environment, parental neglect or loss of the stability of a good home. In order to bring these little folk once more into harmony with orderly society, the Child's Welfare department steps in, foster homes are found, and a new start is made. This adult authority carries grave responsibilty. Those in charge of child welfare should be of highest intelligence specially trained and with an infinite patience and sympathy. Foster homes should be most carefully selected, and frequently supervised. It requires wisdom to bring up any child in the way he should go. It requires special wisdom to heal wounds caused by cruelty or neglect, and to restore distorted perspective.

As for the reform school plan, if it is a failure, that also can be laid at the door of adult society. No stigma need be attached to the inmates of such a school, if the school itself is of high standard and its graduates are useful, upstanding young people. But that can only be realized under wise, enlightened direction. The administrators of such schools should be tops in their class, because of the magnitude of their task in remoulding lives. And they should be recompensed accordingly.

An unusual instance of thought for under-privileged children has come to light in an offer made by a Mrs. Peck of Lethbridge district to turn over her 640 acre farm as an experimental school for delinquent boys. This offer has been made to the government. It is an irrigated farm with first class buildings and heavy production, offering apparently excellent opportunity for trying out a Borstal system in Alberta. Mrs. Peck has offered the farm rent free for a three-year trial period. After that time a fair price might be arranged by arbitration.

The outcome of this remarkably generous offer will be followed with great interest. The tragedy of Alberta is that there is no place for "chronic incorrigibles" of juvenile age but jails and association with old offenders. Here is an opportunity for more intelligent approach to a great human problem.

Amongst the bye-products of war are shattered homes, general laxity of conduct and increased defiance of laws of orderly living. Out of these conditions spring juvenile crime. A start should be made now in bringing these young lives into control, and guiding them to honorable citizenship. We dare not neglect erring youth.

PERTINENT TOPICS

DISCUSSED BY H.C.

Italy's capitulation was delayed by the Badoglio government's desire to find out the conditions under which she could unconditionally surrender.

—o—o—

According to Hon. R. B. Hanson, M.P., the defeat of the government in four bye-elections was brought about by people who want to win the war. The Bloc Populaire would rather win a bye-election than the war and it won one of the four.

—o—o—

That story about Mussolinf meeting death while in a submarine is nonsense. But it might easily be the other way—in his death he might have met a submarine. Depends entirely on the route he took, but it pleases us to believe he is still living and safe from his German friends.

—o—o—

We don't get the point in that story that he was confined by order of the King in some place where he could not be captured by the Germans. It is true they tried to get the Queen of Holland and the King of Norway, but what use would Mussolini be to them? They don't regard his counsel as being worth while and he would have no market for ransom.

—o—o—

These people who find fault because Stalin was not invited to the Quebec conference overlook the fact that he is fighting on only one front whereas Britain and the U.S. are fighting not only Germany and Italy but also Japan with which Russia is at peace. We are indebted to Stalin for the interest those people take in the war, but they ought to see that no slight was intended their idol and that it would be embarrassing to him to attend a conference which might offend the Japanese with whom at present he very naturally desires to continue peaceful relations. We owe a debt of gratitude to the Russians not only for the valiant fight they are putting up but also because they won over to our side several million people in Canada and the U.S. who before that had been lukewarm if not positively hostile, to our cause.

—o—o—

If it is true that Italy has handed over British prisoners to Germany then it can not to be true that Italy is seeking easier terms of surrender.

—o—o—

But if Italy did this, it is nothing to what France did. Italy is still an enemy continuing the war, but France was an ally sworn not to make a separate peace, yet she did and one of the terms assented to and carried out, was to hand over to Germany enemy airmen captured by the British who afterwards took a hand in the bombing of British cities.

—o—o—

A Society with a name similar to hundreds that flourished, died and were revived has informed the world that Soviet Russia will give the world no trouble after the war if she is given free access to the Atlantic. The name smells like one that might have been formed to do the work of the Comintern which was supposed to be dissolved but whose soul goes marching on. It was a universal fifth column and operated in every country to the disadvantage of that country and at the behest of Moscow. Stalin does not often appear in the picture—does not need to. His faithful emissaries will act on the pressing of a button or the pulling of a string.

—o—o—

They seem fearful that Russia will pull out at the border unless the Allies toe the mark although such a thing would be directly contrary to the interests of Russia and the known characteristics of its leader who is nothing if not vindictive and vengeful. He can be counted upon to stop at the old frontiers only if the interests of Russia are met and his own lusts satiated. He is not in the war to help the Allies beyond that point, but up to that point he can be relied upon.

—o—o—

In the final round-up of Axis criminals Ribbentrop is our quarry. Anyone else can have Hitler or Mussolini. We want Ribbentrop.

—o—o—

Who said Allied diplomacy is the bunk? Anything that could effect a reconciliation between DeGaulle and Giraud is tops.

—o—o—

Every day one reads that the Premier was host at a banquet given the Churchills, or the visiting delegates to Quebec or the pressmen. Being Prime Minister now is an expensive job. On such an occasion C nada mght well play the host and pay the shot, but, according to the despatches sent out, Mr. King has to do the whole thing himself. It's no fair.

Down on The Farm

Down the farm 'bout half-past four
I slips on me pants an' sneaks out the door.
Out to the barn I run like the dickens
To milk ten cows and feed the chickens,
Clean out the stable, curry Nancy and Jiggs,
Separate the cream and slops the pigs.
Work two hours, then eat like a Turk,
And then, by heck, I'm ready for work!
I grease up the wagon and put on the rack,
Throw a jug of water in the old grain sack,
Hitch up the horses, hustle down the lane—
Must soon get the hay in, it looks like rain.
Look over yonder, sure as I'm born
Cattle's on the rampage, cows in the corn.
Start 'cross the medder, run a mile or two,
Heaving like I'm windbroke; wet clean through.
Get back to the horses, then for recompense,
Nancy gets a-straddle of the barbed wire fence.
Joints all acrackin' and muscles in a jerk,
I'm as fit as a fiddle for a full day's work.
Work all summer 'till winter is nigh,
Worked all year and didn't make a thing,
Got less cash than I did last spring.
Some people tell you that there ain't no hell,
But they never tried to farm, so can't tell.
When spring rolls round, I'll take another chance,
While the fringe grows longer on my one pair of pants.
Give my 'spenders a hitch and my belt another jerk,
And, by heck, I'm ready for a full day's work.

Male Revolt Over "Teacup" Ritual

Editor, Vulcan Advocate.

We sometimes find ourselves wishing that our social education had not been so neglected. In our abysmal ignorance we find our soul revolting at the prominence given by the social columns to those who pour tea.

To us pouring tea has never seemed a herculean task although at times it calls for the skill of a juggler and the mathematical ability of a landlady of a boarding house to see that the quantity should be sufficient to, but never exceed the occasion.

Raised as we were on a farm we would laud the praises of the chap who splits the kindling, lugs in the coal and water and builds the fire and heap our praises on the mother of a large family who constantly leaves her own dinner to wait on her family. Our hearts are wrung with pity for the one who makes or passes mountainous piles of sandwicnes and the compilation of a cake is an art worthy of veneration. The social columns decree otherwise. Miss Superior poured. Seated on a cushioned settee or on a chair as uncomfortable as her pose, she poured. Dribbling dainty droplets into impossible fragile cups, she poured. Having done that she reached the acme of ambition, the perfect product of a lifetime of social training.

A MERE MAN

One Third More Coffee and Tea

The War Time Prices and Trade Board has softened up and after Sept. 2 Canadian rations for tea and coffee will be increased by one-third. It is possible that rations may be increased further at later date as ocean shipping conditions permit.

However, the pending increase will be greatly appreciated by Canadian consumers. The increase becomes effective with the use of coupons in the new ration book.

The increase will be realized by making two coupons valid every three weeks instead of every four weeks.

In the new book of ration coupons, there will be no dates to say when the coupons become valid, but these dates will be announced from time to time. The first coupons of the new book come due Sept. 2.

Can. Casualties In Sicily Campaign

Canadian Troops Suffered 1895 Total Casualties Up to Aug. 4. Allied Losses 25,000

Up to Aug. 4, Canadian casualties in the Sicilian campaign, totalled 1895 according to the defence department. There were 385 killed, 1200 wounded and 310 missing.

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower announced total Allied casualties for the Sicilian campaign to be 25,000 men. He claimed Axis losses to have been 167,000 killed, wounded and missing. There were at least ten Allied divisions fighting, five American, four British and one Canadian.

It is said that the German losses while crossing the Strait of Messina, will never be known. The enemy losses in tanks was 260, and 502 enemy guns were destroyed. Axis plane losses were over six times Allied losses, being 1491 to 217.

The Can. Dept. of Defence says that Canadian casualties averaged about 70 a day for the 25-day period.

(Disclosure of the Canadian losses came on the first anniversary of the Battle of Dieppe, in which the Dominion lost 3,350 men killed, wounded or taken prisoners).

In Sicily, a division was engaged, the 1st under command of Maj-Gen. Guy Simonds of Kingston, Ont. Proportionate to the number of troops engaged, the losses were very small compared with the last major Canadian army engagement, the battle of Dieppe when out of two brigades and an army tank battalion, a total of about 5,000 troops, more than 3,000 casualties were reported.

At Hong Kong, a combined Canadian-British-Indian force resisted a Japanese attack for more than two weeks before surrendering on Christmas Day, 1941, when further resistance became impossible.

The Canadian contingent numbered 1,895 men in two battalions, the Winnipeg Grenadiers and the Royal Regiment of Canada from Quebec, plus a brigade headquarters. The whole force was either killed or made prisoner and subsequent reports from the Japanese on the number of prisoners indicated 296 of the Canadians were dead or missing.

The Canadian force engaged at Dieppe was probably less than half the size of the force engaged in Sicily.

The Sicily fighting was a successful advancing operation, so the taking of prisoners by the enemy was probably negligible, but at Dieppe, which was an attack and then planned withdrawal, the taking of prisoners by the enemy accounted for more than half the casualties.

Why We Are Fighting?

(From Printed Word)

The real reason that we in the British Empire are fighting this war seems to be in danger of being forgotten. We did not enter the war in September, 1939, to create a bright new world. We did not enter the war in order that we might formulate a new economic system. We entered the war to save the world that was ours and rights and privileges which had been hard won through generation after generation.

Much as we hated war we loved our freedom more. In spite of the maladjustments following the last war we had what millions of people in Europe and Asia did not have and a degree of freedom under democratic government which had never in all history been equalled. We had a record of continuous improvement in social legislation and while there was place for still further advances in working and living conditions, our entire history was an assurance that the necessary changes would come.

That is what we are actually fighting for although the idealists and the opportunists are seeking to make capital by belittling the world as we knew it in 1939. They offer the mirage of a bright new world at a time when our first necessity is the winning of the war. They confuse the serious problem of post-war readjustment by offering economic cure-alls of dubious merit.

There is no need to turn back the clock, for after all we are four years older than we were in 1939; but when it comes to planning our post-war future we could do very much worse than use 1939 as a base to start off from. It was 1939—remember?—when we last had all of those things for which this nation is now fighting.

WAR NOTES

Canadian forces in occupational action represent all parts of Dominion. Home defence

Complete Control of Northern Islands

Sicilian seizure practically over; Mainland invasion next? Berlin raided by 700 planes

The combined United States and Canadian forces, making up a formidable invasion body have captured Kiska, the last remaining Jap-seized island of the Aleutians. No resistance was encountered, and it is believed the Japanese evacuated under cover of fog just a short time before the invading forces landed. Crude buildings were found to be intact and the Japs also left guns and ammunition. The occupation began early August 14. The Canadians arrived on August 15 with camouflaged faces and equipment, well prepared for the combat that did not develop. These specially trained forces represented all parts of Canada. Troops were trained on Vaucouver Island prior to sailing for Alaska, and many of the men were those under compulsory service for home defence. Premier King in a radio address outlined the great amount of preparation involved in preparing all manner of troops for west coast and Alaskan defence. He spoke of the chain of airfields through the north-west, and the Alaskan highway.

The Japanese abandonment of Kiska is in contrast to previous last ditch stands. The possibility of bombing the Jap mainland from Kiska is remote but not impossible. It completes a northern road to Japan and makes possible air and naval bases to protect northern movement. More than five million pounds of bombs have been dropped on Kiska in the last year.

The air battle for Southern Italy continues with attacks centring on railway connections with the north. Capture of Lepari and Stromboli islands by the U.S. naval forces brings the main Aeolian silands under allied control. Sardinia and areas round Naples have been bombed. Invasion of the mainland is imminent. All Africa and important islands of the Mediterranean are now in allied hands. Except Crete there is no difficult Axis strongholds in the Mediterranean.

The attack on southern areas of Italy coincides with continual harassment of enemy cities in the north and in Germany. Berlin was blasted on successive attacks, with 700 planes in recent assault and great areas have been razed. Swiss rumors are that the German government is leaving Berlin. Indications that the German terror over other countries is lessening is shown in the open broadcasts from Switzerland and Sweden reporting most damaging incidents of unrest in Germany. The Allies have warned that neutral nations must not give sanctuary to escaping Nazi leaders. All Nazis in high places must be brought to trial and punishment after the war.

The fellow who stops his advertising to save money is like the chap who stopped the clock to save time.

The Young People of the Church of Christ have taken over one of the town tennis courts and it is now ready for use. A fee of fifty cents is being charged to any who wish to play. All fees are to be paid to Ruth Wismer, secretary of the Young People's group.

An honor has been conferred upon W. B. Way of High River, in his election as president of the provincial Anti-T.B. Association. The annual meeting was held in Edmonton on Sunday with delegates present from all representative points of the province. Dr. Cross, minister of health and other speakers were present. High River was represented by W. B. Way and Cecil Crooks.

Mr. Way has been secretary of the provincial organization since its inception five years ago. E. C. Shaughnessy has been president for the same period, and resigned from that office. Mr. Way was then elected as his successor.

DIGGING FOR BUFFALO BONES

A large encampment of Indians has been noticed beside the road west of Nanton. They are said to be Blackfeet from the Gleichen Reserve, and their work is the digging out of old buffalo bones from the coulees. Several carloads of buffalo bones have been unearthed through their efforts and shipped out.

This is a real resurrection of the past. Why are buffalo bones to be found in such quantity round these coulees? Was there a big stampede with the buffalo piling in over the cutbanks? Were the coulees an old slaughtering ground

There is quite an amount of interesting conjecture on the question. At any rate the Blackfeet of today are realizing on the native life of almost a century ago.

YOU always face the danger of serious breakdown to farm machinery. However, this year at harvest time, because of Canada's urgent need for food, it is more important than ever that you take extra precautions by providing your equipment with the right kind of lubrication. Call on the McColl-Frontenac Representative in your district and get a supply of these better farm lubricants.

OUT OF BLACK-OUT

Sgt. Geog. Jackson; 91st. Btty., R, C.A., 20th July:

"Just a few lines to let you know that we are still alive and kicking. Much to our disgust, we are still in dear old Blighty and not chasing Wops through olive groves. Oh well, maybe we are better off. We're in tents now, in a camp situated in the woods so we don't get very sunburned. It's a better camp than that which we had last year and dries up much sooner.

"I suppose you know that Jim Kennedy has left us. Harry Rowell, Mitchell and Clark are still with us. Clark is now a lance-sergeant in the signallers. My brother and I are now both in the 91st. I came back from R.H.Q. two weeks ago and like it fine."

Lac. Steve Bond; R.C.A.F.; 2nd July:

"Yesterday held a pleasant surprise for me, for in the morning mail I received ten letters. Mail seems to come in batches, and after not having mail from home for a good few days, it's very pleasant to get a whole handful and hear the latest news.

"I had read in the Canadian Press News that Bishop Sherman was leaving our district and going to Winnipeg, and had been wondering who the new Bishop would be. According to your letter the election will be over by now.

"My station is in a rural part of England so it allows me a fairly good chance of seeing farming as practiced here. Must say it is quite different from our western type and seems to involve a great deal of really hard work. The small fields enclosed with hedges and growing such a variety of crops are definitely a contrast to our large waving fields of wheat. It's looking very nice now, everything is green and in full bloom.

"It hasn't been very warm though up till now and not much sun. Last Sunday was a beutiful day and my afternoon off as well, so I spent a good few hours lying on the sand. The sea was exceptionally rough so none of us ventured in. Maybe now that July is in we'll get a bit warmer weather and consequently a bit more swimming.

"Please give my regards to friends in Eastway district, and thanks for remembering me."

Sgt. M. A. Johnston; R.C.A.S.C.; 28th July:

"The war news looks very good doesn't it; we are all glad to see that some of the Canadian forces have gone into action. I would like if you would give the Elks my right address as I will give it to you in this letter. Their cigs. I appreciate very much as they are awfully hard to get here and very expensive, 70 cents for 20 cigarettes.

"The weather is very nice now and harvest is in full swing. It's a very picturesque time of year in England. I am kept quite busy in my work in the Motor Transport Inspectorate, mechanical division. I think that I have seen more of England than most English people, and have been in almost every big town here and a good number of the small ones. I could write a very good book on how the Canadians get around England and the hospitality the people show to us, and how the people stood the Battle of Britain.

"Thanks again for your very nice letter and thank all the ladies of the different clubs who send things; they have done much for us boys in the forces.
